

9-1-1 Call - July 17, 2013

(Crying in background.)

Operator: 9-1-1 What's the address of your emergency?

Caller: 977 West 600 South.

Operator: OK – confirm: 977 West 6-0-0 South?

Caller: 600 South.

Operator: Ok, 6-0-0 South?

Caller: Yes.

Operator: Ok, what's going on there? Do you need the police or the ambulance?

Caller: Yes, I need the police.

Operator: Ok, what's going on there?

Caller: My . . . (unintelligible) . . . hit me in front of my kids . . .

Operator: OK, what happened in front of your kids?

Caller: It's a domestic violence issue.

Operator: Ok, domestic. Ok, does anybody have any weapons?

Caller: No, he's a psycho.

Operator: Ok, has anybody been drinking?

Caller: Yes, and he just left. Yes.

Operator: Ok, has he left?

Caller: Yes, he just left.

Operator: Ok, which way did he go?

Caller: He went . . . (unintelligible) . . . he went west.

Operator: Westbound?

Caller: Yes.

Operator: Did he leave . . .

Caller: He's in a '98 um . . . '98 Blazer. Or an '89 Blazer.

Operator: Ok, are you injured? Do you need an ambulance?

Caller: No, I don't need an ambulance at all . . . (unintelligible) . . . I just . . . he just threw my laptop at my face and scratched the crap out of my hand.

Operator: Ok, I'm sorry I can't understand you. Say that again.

Caller: He threw my laptop at my face and it hit my nose. I don't think my nose is broken, but. . he hit my nose and he scratched the shit out of my face and he pushed me around numerous times.

Operator: Ok, well we can send an ambulance. Are you bleeding?

Caller: No.

Operator: Ok. All right. And you said he went westbound?

Caller: Yes.

Operator: Ok, do you want an ambulance?

Caller: No, I don't want an ambulance.

Operator: Ok, all right, just a second. We do have help coming to you. Are your kids ok?

Caller: Yeah, they're just scared.

Operator: What?

Caller: I said 'Yeah, they're just scared.'

Operator: Say that again.

Caller: They're just scared.

Operator: They're down stairs?

Caller: They're scared.

Operator: They're scared? Ok, I'm sure they are. Tell me how old they are.

Caller: Two and five.